

Project of the Month, February 2012

Jim hired Cardinal the year our firm was founded. He hired us to set up his wired ethernet and wifi. His employer required a secure wired internet connection. Using the existing cable, we re-distributed the network cabling through the house.

A year later, they hired us to install a new surround system. It is discrete, yet versatile. The A/V program offers surround to the TV while their music plays on the back porch. All this is controlled by a single remote.

Here is Jim's review:

I first met Marc Larin in October 2010 when I moved to the Raleigh area. When I moved into my home I needed wired internet service (VPN) in my home for my business. Once I established an account I installed my router and realized that the wired network system in my home did not function properly, most of the rooms had no wired service. I then called a different company to fix this problem, they came a week later and told me they could not fix the problem, but still wanted to charge me for 3 hours ($300 dollars). I then found Marc Larin and Cardinal Home Technologies. Marc came to my home within the week and was able to repair the internet service to the rooms that needed service. Additionally, he installed my wireless network and since this work was completed I have not had any problems. Thanks Marc for keeping me in business!

In December 2011, my wife and I wanted a Surround Sound System installed in my home. Marc recommended the Onkyo Receiver with Jamo speakers. My wife and I could not be any happier. The work was completed within the time on the estimate and it was done neatly. Marc also spent additional time in helping my wife and I understand how to use the system.

I highly recommend Marc and Cardinal Cabling. Marc is honest and professional and I will use Marc again in the future to do additional work at my home.
